The total package

by Dick Townsend-Smith

THREE senior government ministers came to Greenwich to see a pioneering health and social care scheme in action last week.

The ground-breaking scheme gets teams of doctors, community carers, social workers and volunteers working together to provide a tailored-made package of services for individual patients.

The leading-edge integration work of Greenwich Coordinated Care means fewer admissions into hospital and care homes and huge savings in the costs of health care.

Health Secretary Jeremy Hunt, Communities and Local Government Secretary Eric Pickles, and Care Services Minister Norman Lamb came to see the scheme at work at the Sherard Road Medical Centre in Eltham last Wednesday.

They met local councillors and social services staff, commissioners from NHS Greenwich CCG, health professionals from the Coordinated Care team and Oxleas NHS Foundation

JOINED UP CARE: council leader Denise Hyland and local government secretary Eric Pickles discuss the new scheme

Trust, and GP Dr Krishna Subbarayan, who has been leading the work that was piloted in Eltham.

The health minister said: "The work in Greenwich is a leading example of joined up care and we heard first-hand how this is making a difference to patients. We want to make this vision a reality for patients across the country and help deliver a sustainable future for the NHS."

Mr Pickles said: "It was great to see for myself the pioneering work that is going on in Greenwich. Better care

Have a blitz on owners with dogs off the lead

THE council should have a 'blitz' on dog owners who allow their dogs to be 'off lead'. If you want to allow your dog a bit of freedom, invest in an extendable lead. That way you are never too far away from your dog but can still be in control. Greenwich Council would make a fortune if they gave on-the-spot fines for dogs off leads. They seem to be able to do it for dropping cigarette ends – a dog on the loose can cause far more harm than a discarded cigarette end. My 14-year-old Yorkshire terrier was attacked by a loose Staffie who didn't even have a collar on, never mind a lead. The council has signs up stating dogs on leads at all times but I have never seen this being enforced.

Mrs H Fitzgerald,
Thamesmead West

● A Greenwich Council spokesperson said: 'We are sorry to hear of the trouble you and your dog have encountered whilst walking. The council has clear guidelines on acceptable conduct for those responsible for dogs through its Dog Control Orders and will pursue strong action against those who ignore these obligations.'

Dog owners who fail to keep their dog on a lead in a public place are committing an offence. They will be issued with a penalty by a Town Centre Warden when seen to be in violation. In parks and open spaces, officers enforce Dog Control Orders if they witness dogs that are not adequately under control. In both cases a fixed penalty notice of £75 is issued, with a maximum £2,500 fine and prosecution following if the penalty goes unpaid.

THE ORNC used to have a lovely seasonal outdoor ice rink (pictured) but have not for several years now. Who decided to axe it and why? Is reinitiating it begin reconsidered, and if not why?

Would you look into the loss of such a brilliant amenity, one that surely brings in additional visitors and revenue? Thanks for your consideration.

Harry Glavan,
West Greenwich

● A spokesperson from the Greenwich Foundation said: 'The ice rink was a great attraction at the Old Royal Naval College but is something we haven't done for a while. Previously, the promoter we worked in partnership with decided not to continue with the ice rink at the ORNC. We did look into alternative arrangements, but at the time ice rinks were also being offered by the O2 and at Canary Wharf, so we believed the market to be fulfilled. We will think about this very carefully for next year.

Paws for thought

DOGS and cats were microchipped and supplied with ID tags for free at a special event for pet owners at the Armada Court Community Hall in McMillan Street, Greenwich, last Wednesday (October 29).

The day brought together staff from Battersea Dogs and Cats Home, the PDSA, Cats Protection and the council. It was designed to encourage responsible pet ownership, and people were given advice from experts.

Cllr Chris Kirby, the council's cabinet member for housing, talked to residents to find out what issues they had. Tenancy enforcement staff from the council spoke about responsible dog ownership, including keeping dogs on leads where appropriate and not allowing fowling.

Also there was Caroline

Pidgeon, Deputy Chair of the London Assembly's Police and Crime Committee. It was a follow-up visit to her tour of Battersea Dogs and Cats Home last month.

The event followed another Pet Wellbeing Day at the Turning Pages Community Centre in Eltham the previous day. The council has been running similar events in different areas for the past three years, in partnership with Battersea. Staff have been able to microchip hundreds of dogs and offer responsible dog ownership advice to their owners.

South East London is getting back to business

BUSINESSES in South East London received a boost last month (Oct 24) when Dr Vince Cable MP, (pictured) Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills visited the South East London Chamber of Commerce to meet members and answer questions.

The event, held at The O2 on Greenwich Peninsula saw Dr Cable, give a presentation to guests, where he discussed a wide range of issues from the state of UK business to the role of apprenticeships. Afterwards members of the chamber grilled the government minister in a question-and-answer session where he was asked about subjects including social housing and the European Union.

Steve Nelson, government relations director at the chamber, told GT: "The visit provided a fantastic opportunity for local businesses to air their concerns and ask questions of the man at the top. It was very good of Dr Cable to take time out of his busy schedule to come to talk to us".

The South East London Chamber of Commerce is an organisation made up of entrepreneurs and owners of small, medium and large businesses in the London boroughs of Bexley, Bromley, Greenwich and Lewisham and currently has over 350 members.

New doors open to over-55s

by Dick Townsend-Smith

A SPECIAL event is planned for over-55s interested in downsizing and moving into a smaller home.

They will be able to hear about newly-built homes for rent, shared ownership schemes, and lower-cost homes for sale.

The event will be in the Public Hall at Woolwich Town in Wellington Street on Thursday, November 27, between 10am and 2pm.

It is all part of the council's commitment to keeping people informed about the range of accommodation available for older people in the borough.

New homes are being planned following the development of senior living accommodation at Eltham and Kidbrooke earlier this year. These are at Mabel Polley House in Woolwich, plus 22 bungalows and seven flats on different sites around the borough.

There is also a development on the Royal Arsenal site which is a mixture of properties for rent, shared ownership and discounted sale with the Viridian Housing Association. It's all part of the on-going work between the council and its housing partners to develop a wide range of housing options for people currently living in the borough who are aged 55 and over.

Priority for the rented homes will be given to current council tenants who are living in family-sized housing and want to downsize into smaller homes, or to tenants who are being rehoused as part of the regeneration plans for the Woolwich area. The first of these will be available from March next year.

Downsizing to a smaller, purpose-built

UPGRADE AND DOWNSIZE: Small stylish properties are set to become available. Artists' impressions of Mabel Polley House (top pic) and the Royal Arsenal (above) home can have many benefits including cutting household and energy bills, less cleaning and gardening.

The shared ownership homes being developed in Woolwich will include a range of one and two bedroom apartments, for which council tenants and residents will be given priority. Some of the new schemes will also include shared ownership (part rent, part buy) homes.

● For more contact the council's Access and Allocations Team on 020 8921 2941 or email: housing-allocations@royalgreenwich.gov.uk.

Government praises care package is about the improvements we can make for some of the most vulnerable in society so that they can have dignity and independence in old age. The services in Eltham do exactly that."

And care services minister Norman Lamb added: "Too often care is uncoordinated, leaving many people needlessly going back to A&E again and again. The approach in Eltham is helping to keep people healthy and out of hospital by bringing the right professionals together and really listening to the patient and their families."

Greenwich set up six integrated community health and social care teams. They include a named professional who acts as a 'care navigator' for each person co-ordinating integrated care plans after discussing their needs with health and social care professionals.

It means patients don't have to repeat their story to numerous different professionals.

So far the scheme has:

- Cut hospital and care home admissions
- Set up joint emergency response teams of professionals who respond to crises, preventing people ending up in hospital unnecessarily

- Cut avoidable hospital admissions to A&E and

- made savings to the local health and social care economy of £900,000.

Patients and their families are full of praise for the scheme. Linda Harris, who cares for her mum Joan, 90, said: "It used to be the case if you were caring for someone, you didn't know who to ring. Or you would call one number and they would just give you another number. Now we have just one number to call, and if there is anything that needs sorting they can do it through that team. It's made so much difference to mum."

THE INTEGRATION GAME: I-r Norman Lamb MP, Cllr David Gardner, Dr Ellen Wright, Jeremy Hunt MP, Dr Krishna Subbarayan, Eric Pickles MP and council leader Cllr Denise Hyland

Cllr David Gardner, the council's cabinet member for health and social care, said:

"Our partnership with the local health sector and voluntary groups continues to achieve some very impressive successes, such as the savings in social care budgets and the reduction in unnecessary hospital admissions. Just as important are the stories we hear from patients who tell us what a difference it makes to their lives to have services planned around their needs, and a single point of contact for all support services."

Amazing achievers

CHILDREN in care were awarded for their amazing academic and sporting achievements at a special awards night at the Valley, home of Charlton Athletic Football Club.

The celebratory event was attended by 300 guests including 70 children and young people in care who were nominated by teaching staff and social workers because of their attitude to learning and for outstanding academic, creative or sporting achievements at the event on Friday October 17.

One of the young people who attended said: "It was really fun, I would definitely go again. It was jam packed with entertainment and one of the best days of my life."

The Annual Achievement Awards for Children in Care in the royal borough of Greenwich is organised by the virtual school for looked after children, supported by the royal borough of Greenwich.

Guests included Greenwich Mayor Mick on the proposal for a new tunnel under the Thames at Silvertown

We'd like your opinion on a new tunnel at Silvertown, which is part of a package of proposed river crossings. The new tunnel will:

- Provide a new road crossing across the Thames
- Reduce queuing at the Blackwall Tunnel
- Support the creation of new jobs and homes
- Create the opportunity for new public transport connections

We'd also like your views on a range of charging options that are being proposed for the Blackwall and Silvertown Tunnels, once the Silvertown Tunnel opens in the early 2020s. This would help manage demand and fund the new tunnel.

Two jailed after VOCU drugs raid

by Dick Townsend-Smith

TWO drug dealers have been sentenced to nearly 15 years in prison following an investigation by the council-sponsored Greenwich Violent and Organised Crime Unit (VOCU).

Uchechukwu Njoku 28, and Johnson Okonkwo, 31, both of Waterside Close, Thamesmead, were arrested in the early hours of December 17 last year after police officers executed a warrant at their home.

Officers found a total of 14 kilos of phenacetin, a cutting agent for cocaine, together with crack cocaine and high purity cocaine with a street value of £234,000.

They also found scales, mixing bowls

Bust nets drugs worth £234,000 and knives clearly used to mix drugs. Detectives also seized £7,000 in cash found in the flat. Both men were charged with conspiracy to supply class 'A' drugs and money laundering.

Njoku was sentenced to seven years and four months in prison for conspiracy to supply drugs. He was also sentenced to two years for money laundering, both sentences to be served concurrently.

Okonkwo was also sentenced to seven years and four months for conspiracy to supply class A drugs.

He was also sentenced to six months for money laundering, also to be served concurrently.

They both pleaded guilty on October 16 and were sentenced at Woolwich Crown Court on the same day. Both men are likely to face deportation once they have completed their sentences.

VOCU officer in the case, PC Ben Iles said: "We have made another serious dent in the pockets of those who bring drugs to the streets of Greenwich. We hope that these sentences send out a strong message and deter those who are involved in drug dealing - we will do all we can to arrest them, investigate them and bring them before a court."

The intelligence-led police unit dedicated to targeting known gang members, criminal networks and the most serious offenders, was formed in 2008 with council support.

Cllr Jackie Smith, the council's cabinet member for community safety and environment, said: "Many congratulations to the VOCU team on yet another well investigated and executed case. Our innovative funding of the VOCU police team continues to play an important role in making the borough a safer place. Since 2008 it has been directly responsible for taking many dangerous criminals off our streets, as well as large and harmful quantities of illegal drugs, laundered money and weapons."

Seasonal Flu Myth-buster

What is flu? Isn't it the same as a cold? What are the symptoms?

Flu is a highly contagious viral infection which spreads rapidly. Even those with mild or no symptoms can infect others. Flu is not the same as a heavy cold. Most flu cases occur during the winter months – between October and January.

Flu symptoms can come on very quickly. The most common symptoms of flu are fever, chills, headache, aches and pains in the joints and muscles, and extreme tiredness. Most people usually recover within seven days. Flu can be really serious and for some, it can increase the risk of developing a more serious illness and in the worst case, hospitalisation or even death.

How is flu contracted and how can it be avoided?

When an infected person coughs or sneezes, they spread the flu virus in tiny droplets of saliva over a wide area. These droplets can be breathed in by other people or they can be picked up by touching surfaces where the droplets have landed.

The best way to avoid catching and spreading flu, is by having the vaccination before the flu season starts – which is now.

Do healthy people get flu?

We are all susceptible to flu, even if we are in good health and eat well. For the majority of people who catch it, flu is simply unpleasant. The impact of flu on frail and vulnerable patients can be fatal and outbreaks of the virus can cause severe disruption in communities, care homes and hospitals.

Is the flu vaccine safe? Can people contract flu from the flu vaccine?

The flu vaccine is safe and effective. You cannot get flu from the flu vaccine. The risk of having a serious allergic reaction (anaphylaxis) to the seasonal flu vaccine is less than one in a million. It is much less than the risk of getting seriously ill from having flu itself.

The only people who should not have the vaccine are those who have an anaphylactic reaction to a previous dose of seasonal flu vaccine. If you have a serious allergic reaction to hens' eggs, you may be able to have an egg-free flu vaccine.

Is the vaccine safe in pregnancy?

It is safe to have the vaccine at whatever stage of pregnancy. Having the vaccine protects mother and baby from the ill effects of the flu virus and offers additional protection to the baby after they are born and during the early months of life.

Are the side effects from the vaccination really bad?

Most people don't react badly to the flu vaccine. You may experience slight soreness around the injection site and a slightly raised temperature. Generally, side effects from the vaccine are usually mild and self-limiting.

I've had flu already; is it still necessary to get the flu jab? Is it too late to have the flu vaccine?

Many strains of flu viruses are responsible for flu; you will only be protected by the immunity you developed naturally against one of them. If you catch another flu strain you will develop flu. It is recommended you have the jab even if you've recently had flu.

It is advisable not to delay getting vaccinated. Although the flu season lasts a few months, it is advantageous to get in early and get flu safe in time for winter. The best time to be vaccinated is at the start of the flu season – from October to early November.

Are other preventative measures other than the flu jab available?

Good infection control measures are essential. They reduce the spread of flu, but are not sufficient alone to prevent it. Taking a daily dose of vitamin C helps boost the immune system but there is no evidence this alone is sufficient to prevent flu. It is essential that people eat well, wrap up warm while out and keep their homes warm – living room temperature should be around 18-21°C.

I had the flu jab before, do I need it again?

The viruses that cause flu can change every year. Consequently, vaccines that match the new strains are developed yearly. The vaccine usually provides protection for the duration of the flu season that year, so you are urged to take up the free offer.

Can children have the flu vaccine?

Children over the age of 6 months 'at risk' of developing a serious illness or complications if they develop the flu are eligible for the free flu vaccine. 'At risk' children between 6 months and 2 years are offered a flu jab while a nasal spray is recommended for children over 2. Children at risk from flu include those with a pre-existing illness such as asthma, diabetes or liver disease or those with learning disabilities. Children with lowered immunity (natural defence against disease) as a result of disease or treatment are also eligible. The list is not exhaustive; contact your GP for eligibility.

Healthy children aged between 2 and 4 are also eligible for the flu vaccine.

Is it necessary for Health and social care workers to be flu safe?

Frontline health and social care workers owe their patients, clients or residents a duty of care to protect them against infection. Getting vaccinated against flu reduces your chances of getting flu and can help protect you and vulnerable patients in communities, care homes and hospitals.

Health and social care staff are urged to inform patients in the clinical risk groups of the flu vaccination programme and respond to any concerns their patients and clients may have.

Who should consider having a flu vaccination?

The following people should consider having a flu vaccine even if they feel healthy:

- Everyone aged 65 years or over
- Everyone living in a long stay residential care or nursing home
- Persons in receipt of a carers allowance or the main carer of an older or disabled person whose welfare may be at risk if you fall ill
- A health or social care worker with direct patient contact
- Anyone with a serious long term health condition
- All pregnant women at any stage of pregnancy
- Healthy children aged 2-4 years

This is not an exhaustive list. You are urged to contact your general practitioner to find out if you are eligible for the flu vaccine.

Volunteers play a vital role

New Woolwich HQ to change the lives of over 4000 local volunteers

by Simon Banks

THE borough's volunteers have been celebrating their move to a brand new training facility on the second floor of the old Woolwich Equitable building in Woolwich New Road.

The Volunteer Centre Greenwich (VCG) supports around 450 local organisations with training workshops and training courses. Last year it signposted 4,000 potential volunteers to different organisations. They ranged from helping with clubs for elderly or handicapped people, to offering support to families who needed a helping hand.

The centres also help volunteers gain skills, experience and confidence to improve their job prospects while also helping the community. It recruited, trained and supported 200 local volunteers for the hugely-successful 2012 London Games. And more recently, it recruited dozens of volunteers to act as shore crew for the borough's Tall Ships Festival.

The VCG used to be based in the Forum, Greenwich, but is now back in Woolwich where it started in 1999. It gets nearly 7,000 enquires a year about volunteering, with nearly 500 volunteers using the Woolwich offices.

Hannah Amousa from Woolwich has been a volunteer for two years and is now an advisor to other volunteers, she said: "The work that volunteers do is so important, it not only benefits the individual but also the local community. Volunteers build their confidence, learn new skills, challenge themselves and achieve things that contribute to future employment and development while at the same time helping to improve the community, it is fantastic."

Myriam Ngwende is also volunteer and advisor and is studying occupational psychology at the University of East London. She said: "Volunteering improves your general wellbeing, because you feel so much better about yourself and your work. If you can benefit from something and give back to the community that is the most important thing."

Michelle Martin, chief executive of Volunteer Centre Greenwich, said:

"This is a fantastic new space that will allow us to improve training, introduce one-to-one meetings and personal development sessions and mentoring groups. The volunteer centre will benefit thoroughly with this move back to our roots in Woolwich and it is a starting point for us as we look to develop further and invest in state-of-the-art IT equipment such as interactive smart boards."

Cllr Mick Hayes, the Mayor of Greenwich, cut the ribbon at the opening ceremony. He said: "I have been on many visits to community groups and organisations, and the positive impact that volunteers in these areas have is quite clear. It is right to give our thanks to those volunteers who help the borough in numerous ways and today is an opportunity for us to celebrate the work volunteers do."

Remembering

REMEMBRANCE events this year will be particularly poignant. People of all ages and backgrounds will come together to observe the two-minute silence at 11am next Tuesday (November 11). It is one hundred years ago that the guns of the First World War fell silent after years of conflict. The Armistice was signed at the 11th hour, of the 11th day, of the 11th month in 1918, so ending what was called "The War to end all wars" in which millions died.

DICK TOWNSEND-SMITH reports

PUBLIC memorials to the men and women in the armed forces who gave their lives for their country are being restored.

It is part of a four-year programme to mark the centenary of the Great War.

Work by the council and its partners is already underway with local volunteers playing an important part. It means the borough's war memorials that will feature in this year's Remembrance Day Services have all been deep cleaned ready for the day.

The programme, which will continue as further restoration work is carried out, reflects the council's commitment to renovate and conserve war memorials across the borough – with a special focus on those dedicated to local servicemen who lost their lives during the First World War in 1914-18.

Detailed restoration plans are being developed with the War Memorials Trust, the War Graves Commission, and the Royal Borough of Greenwich Heritage Trust with funding for the restoration work from sources that include the Heritage Lottery Fund and the War Graves Commission. The works are being prioritised following a full survey carried out by the council of all local war memorials to identify the repairs needed to restore them to the best possible condition.

The survey findings have enabled the council to start discussions with all interested bodies about how future conservation works should be carried out.

Memorials that the council is currently responsible for include Eltham Church War Memorial, Woolwich Road Grand Depot (Boer War) War Memorial, and the Greenwich Cemetery War Memorial.

Over time, and when the programme of new works has been agreed, the council intends to transfer all the memorials to the Royal Greenwich Heritage Trust. This will enable the Trust to take care of ongoing maintenance, and enable it to bid for external funding towards the costs.

Royal borough council leader Cllr Denise Hyland said: "Residents living in the Royal Borough of Greenwich are rightly proud of our historic links with the Armed Services and will never forget the many servicemen and women who gave their lives while serving their country.

"The freedoms that we often take for granted only exist because these people made the ultimate sacrifice for future generations, and this year, as in other years, we expect thousands of people to show their respects at local Remembrance Day Services.

"It is therefore fitting that as we commemorate the World War One centenary, we are able to confirm that a major milestone has been achieved in relation to our plans to restore our local War Memorials."

Cllr Miranda Williams, the Royal Borough's Cabinet Member for Culture and Creative Industries, added, "We recognise that for many people, War Memorials not only provide an opportunity for quiet reflection but they also act as a landmark of civic pride.

"That is why we are committed to ensuring all our War Memorials are renovated and conserved as a lasting tribute. The work carried out will benefit both from the knowledge and expertise of those specialist organisations in the sensitive conservation of these treasured monuments, which are an important part of the heritage of this borough."

Names brought back to life

An exhibition telling the story of the impact the Great War had on the borough is set to tour the borough.

The exhibition is moving from the Greenwich Heritage Centre to Woolwich Town Hall until November 14. It will then move on to Charlton House from Friday November 14 until January 2015. It will then be hosted at venues across the borough, including Avery Hill Winter Garden, Holy Trinity Church and Woolwich Library.

Staff and volunteers of the Royal Greenwich Heritage Trust were behind the project, called 'Family Stories of the Great War; Family Histories from War Memorials'. It explores the human stories behind some of the names on local war memorials as well as the role of Charlton House as a Red Cross wartime auxiliary hospital.

Castle echoes to the sound of music

HISTORIC Severndroog Castle on Shooters Hill will echo to the sound of baroque music once again.

It is to host the first public recital since the visitor attraction reopened to the public in July.

The new Severndroog Recital Series will be launched on Thursday (November 6) with a flute concert from Laura Beardsmore. The series will run on the first Thursday of each month and the programmes will feature music from the era of Lady James, the founder of Severndroog Castle.

Dr Laura Allan, Heritage Manager at the castle, said: "It will be wonderful to have Severndroog Castle host recitals once again and to imagine how Lady James would have been listening to similar music in one of her gatherings back in the 1780s. As far as we know, this may be the first formal recital at Severndroog since it was owned by the James family."

Laura Beardsmore holds an MMus (Distinction) in Flute Performance from Royal Holloway College and performs internationally. For Her Majesty's The Queen's Diamond Jubilee, she performed a new work commissioned by the Royal Chapel, Windsor and she has chosen a programme to reflect the era of the castle.

Thursday's concert will be between 11am and 2pm in the castle's Lady James Room. Tickets are £7.50 (plus booking fee) from Eventbrite.

'Then and Now' takes images of the period from the Greenwich Heritage Centre and photographs of the same locations in Royal Greenwich taken in the present day.

The photographs are on display in the Mulberry Tea Rooms in Charlton House throughout November with a private view on Friday November 7 from 6.30-9.30pm. There will be nibbles, wine and a performance by the SE7 singing group, performing songs from the WW1 period.

GFMA have also been working in Cherry Orchard, Wybourne, Charlton Manor and Thorntree Primary Schools on their WW1 project bringing drama and songs from the period for the children to perform on Armistice Day in Charlton House. There will be two sessions one in the morning and one in the afternoon and parents and guardians will be able to attend.

For more information and to book a place for the private view phone GFMA on 020 8858 9497 or email: globalfusionarts@yahoo.co.uk

Clear vision wins Chris an award

AN optical assistant has won a prestigious award for her services to optics. Christine Small (pictured) specialises in the home service at Page and Small Opticians in Charlton.

She completed a distance learning diploma to become an optical dispensing assistant, saying: "Knowing that you are doing something for someone which really makes a difference to them is very satisfying indeed."

Sponsored by The Worshipful Company of Spectacle Makers, the award recognises the person or team dedicated to improving the patient experience of their practice. As the practice's official window dresser, Ms Small has created award-winning displays which have helped increase patient numbers.

Helping hands for hospice

GREENWICH and Bexley Community Hospice has its own team of more than 560 volunteers.

Volunteers make a difference helping in the hospice's charity shops, driving, fund-raising and working directly with patients and their families at the hospice in Abbey Wood.

They include 70-year-old Charlie Cowcher from Eltham, who support the hospice team by co-ordinating the drivers for day care. He said: "I enjoy meeting the patients and the staff. Everyone has different stories to tell. I love the feeling of being able to help and I would like to see more people take part and help their local hospice."

Rita Billingham, 62, is another hospice volunteer and retired paediatric palliative care nurse from Eltham. She has volunteered at the hospice for the past two years, she said: "I had just come up to retirement and I had skills which I thought would be going to waste, so I volunteered. We give people with practical help to prepare for their deaths, dealing with things like wills, and with personal and practical help in their homes."

The hospice is always keen to hear from new people who would like to become volunteers.

People on the Housing register are able to bid for all properties, regardless of their banding. You must be eligible for the size of property and bids will be considered in the following order:

First Band A, followed by Band B both in priority date order.
Those in Band C will then be considered in registration date order.

Please note that there will still be some properties with age restrictions so only people of this age group can apply for these.

BAND

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free at either The Eltham or Woolwich Centre or a local library.

Important Notice

Please note the closing date to register your bids for advertised properties will be every Sunday at midnight.

Following the successful development of Senior Living accommodation at Eltham and Kidbrooke in 2014, there will be further new developments becoming available in 2015. These are Mabel Polley House in Woolwich and 22 bungalows and 7 flats on a variety of sites around the Royal Borough.

There is also a development on the Royal Arsenal site which is a mixture of properties for rent, shared ownership and discounted sale with Viridian Housing Association. This is part of the on-going work between Royal

SENIOR LIVING IN ROYAL GREENWICH

Greenwich and its housing partners to develop a wide range of housing options for people living in Royal Greenwich and who are aged 55 and over. Priority for the rented homes will be given to Royal Borough tenants who are living in family sized housing and want to downsize into smaller homes, or tenants who are being rehoused as part of the regeneration proposals for the Woolwich area. The first of these will be available from March 2015.

The shared ownership homes being developed in Woolwich will include a range of 1 and 2 bedroom apartments for shared ownership, for which Royal Borough tenants and residents will be given priority.

If you are interested in finding out more about these opportunities please come along to our drop in session on Thursday November 27 between 10.00am and 2.00 pm at: The Public Hall, Town Hall, Wellington Street, Woolwich SE18 6PW.

Royal Borough officers will be available to assist you with any questions.

South London Special League celebrate annual One Game, One Community event

by Simon Banks

IT WAS a football frenzy for the South London Special League last week as the charity celebrated its annual 'One Game One Community' annual event.

Teams of young adults with disabilities, both mental and physical, from all over South London took part in the annual celebration of football and the community where a tournament took place in a round-robin format at Long Lane Football Club on Thursday October 23.

The South London Special League is an award winning community based project that enables young players with disabilities to participate and compete at a level appropriate to their ability and improve their lives, increase fitness, raise their self esteem and heighten their aspirations.

Sharon Brokenshire, manager and founder of the South London Special League, said: "It was wonderful to have so many teams attend the event and for so many people to come along and support in particular the support from Mick Northwood at Long Lane Football Club, the Mayor of Greenwich, Mick Hayes and the rest of the Care Partnership has been amazing. It was a brilliant day of football and sport but more importantly a great example of community cohesion, fair play and sportsmanship."

Young people have been thoroughly enjoying their football by getting stuck into monthly fixtures where football is played in three divisions, with a premiership division, championship division and third division. The winners of these divisions were awarded at the One Game One Community event and the teams took part in another tournament.

One Game One Community was a hugely successful day attended by the Mayor of Greenwich Cllr Mick Hayes and Deputy Leader of the council, Cllr John Fahy along with SLSL founder, Sharon Brokenshire and Rhea Davy, SLSL Development Manager.

The Mayor of Greenwich, Cllr Mick Hayes is a passionate supporter of the work carried out by the South London Special League, which is his chosen charity for his year in office. The Mayor said: "The South London Special League is a fantastic charity that does some really important work in the community and the One Game One Community day today demonstrates just how important and successful Sharon's work has been."

Waltham Forest were crowned winners of the premiership division as Crayside came second place, meanwhile in the championship division Meadow finished in first place followed by Oaklands and in the third division Apasenth were the leaders with GLEBE in second but more importantly everyone enjoyed the day that celebrated health and wellbeing and a sense of community through sports.
